Vermont Homeschool Portfolio Checklist

Work down this list once a term and the annual review stops being an event.

Student: _____

School year: _____

- [ ] A dated log of educational activities
  What you covered and which subject it served, written as you go. Reconstructing a year of this in the week before a review is the single most common portfolio scramble.

- [ ] A reading list, by title
  Every book and material named. This is the piece families most often rebuild from memory, and the piece a reviewer can check fastest.

- [ ] Samples of your student's work
  Writings, worksheets, workbooks, and creative work. A few pieces per subject spread across the year reads as evidence; a stack from one good week does not.

- [ ] The assessment or evaluation record
  Vermont lets you choose: testing, portfolio, or evaluation. Keep the result filed with the portfolio rather than loose, since the two get asked for together.

- [ ] A copy of anything you filed
  Your notice of intent and any correspondence with the district, dated. If a question ever comes up, dated proof that you filed on time closes it.

What Vermont requires

Vermont requires no portfolio, though a parent report with at least four work samples is one of the five ways to satisfy the end-of-year assessment. What is required is retention: 16 V.S.A. 166b(a)(3) has you attest that you will keep the record of those assessments, and the Agency advises holding them until the student turns 18.
